Utah Wins National High School Rodeo Crown

SUBMITTED BY TED HALLISEY

The National High School Rodeo Association's championship belongs to the team from the state of Utah. The Utah team members put together 5,590 points to top the Texas team with 5,462 points, followed by Oklahoma with 3,378 points, during the National High School finals Rodeo, which was held in Springfield, Illinois the last weekend in July.

Jennifer Lytle of St. George, Utah, repeated as the reserve champion for the girl's all-around title. Lytle, the defending champion in the goat-tying event, finished third this year. The gregarious flaxen-haired horsewomen also finished eighth in breakaway roping to cap off a very successful High School rodeo career. She piloted her horse to girl's Horse-of-the-Year honors during the National Championship rodeo.

Miss Cutie Glo carried Lytle to three consecutive goat-tying titles in the state of Utah. The top-ranked rodeo duo is headed to the nationally ranked college rodeo program at the College of Southern Idaho in Twin Falls. Lytle earned a scholarship to rodeo for the top-ranked collegiate program.

Kassie Mowry of Cedar City, Utah, won the barrel racing title and teamed up with Jackie Dannley of Enterprise for the one-two sweep in the cloverleaf competition. Jamie Jarvis just missed making a one-two-three finish for Utah as she captured the fourth spot in the barrel racing event. Nicole Mitchell of West Bountiful finished in 13th place.

Derek Denton of Sterling, Utah, brought home the national champions saddle to Utah after winning the boy's cow cutting event. Deron Hughes of Spanish Fork finished in fourth place.

Eagle Mountain resident Megan Jensen, led the girls to a six-seven-eighth place finish in the girls cow cutting event. Jamie Clark of Corrine and Jenna Coombs of Nephi were seventh and eighth respectively.

Lance Sagers of Rush Valley finished sixth in the bareback event and Colby Olsen of South Jordan finished in 12th place.

Gary Grant of Hooper was eighth in saddle broncs and Farmington's Clint Robinson finished 11th in the steer wrestling event. Coby Hadley completed the winning marks for Utah with a 15th place performance in the calf roping event.

Angi Prevedel of Hooper, and a member of the popular Spikers Rodeo Club, finished as the second attendant in the National High School Rodeo queen competition. Angela Oman of Garland, Utah, was the reigning National Rodeo Queen and served as host for the champion's award ceremonies to complete her term as National Queen.

The NHSRA Association crowned is the second for the Utah team. They also won the National title in 1996 and have been in the national top-10 for the past 10 years. Utah High School rodeo members rank second only to Texas for number of members per capita across the nation.

Training at Soldier Hollow

Sabasteanski. "In fact, it's perfect!"

During previous events held earlier in the summer, athletes ran the course and then shot at the targets during their training. The paved track enables them to use roller skis.

"Using the roller skis helps us train better because they are close to our actual competition skis," Sabasteanski said. "It also saves on our legs, there isn't so much pounding."

There are only three U.S. women and four men that have been training with the Ukrainians at the Soldier Hollow venue. The Ukrainians are the first international team to train at this site.

Sabasteanski liked training with the Ukrainians because she gets the chance to see how her team compares with them, plus knowing the Olympics are going to be at Soldier Hollow is a plus.

The athletes have been in rigorous training for the past week and will continue it until their winter training begins.

"We go to a lot of camps, Soldier Hollow is just one of the stops we make," Sabasteanski said.

Now that things are starting to come together, athletes will either pick up the pace or slow their pace depending on what coaches tell them to do.

To be an athlete like this, one must be able to train all year long. In fact, rumor has it that some of the athletes have moved out here to train on the venue everyday.

Whether it is in the winter or in the summer, these athletes train hard and have the desire to do what they love -- the sport of biathlon.
